Figure 2. Countries with full primary school enrollment nevertheless span a factor of fifty in income levels. Korea maintained full primary enrollment throughout its climb in income. Data as for Figure 1 (World Bank). Enrollments > 100% can reflect older children attending primary school or simply uncertainty in the data (population, demographic distribution, and student numbers). Country subgroups are as in Figure 1.